Dear Sirazum Munira Haque,

This letter provides official documentation of your participation in the Biggio Center for the Enhancement of Teaching & Learning's 2025 Summer Course (Re)Design and certifies you to teach in any EASL space on campus including the Mell Classroom Building and the Academic Classroom and Laboratory Complex (ACLC).

As a participant in this program you: (re)designed a course using principles from Dee Fink's Designing Significant Learning Experiences backwards design process, trained in active learning pedagogy and prepared to apply those principles in EASL classrooms, and became part of an ongoing cohort committed to "making teaching visible" at Auburn University by sharing teaching innovations. Recent research in a variety of fields link an increase of student learning to course redesign efforts: in some disciplines, these gains are as great as 20% more students passing the course without decreasing rigor.

This one-week, 40-hour intensive development program required significant intellectual energy as well as a willingness to challenge yourself to further enhance your teaching. Your participation in this process reflects your interest in self-improvement and that dedication serves as an inspiration to all of us.

As you embark on teaching your new course, keep in mind that students newly involved in active learning approaches often rate the course and instructor poorly even if they end up learning more effectively. However, after the initial dip, student evaluations tend to increase above the level of the original course.

Congratulations on your successful completion of this rigorous program. We hope you (and your students!) continue to reap the benefits of your effort and care for teaching well.

Best regards,

S. Asim Ali, Executive Director
Biggio Center for the Enhancement of Teaching & Learning
